CONDITIONS OF ENTRY

- Submission of this entry form confirms acceptance of the exam entry regulations and conditions as listed below and in the syllabus.
- It is the candidate's responsibility to have knowledge of, and comply with, the current syllabus requirements. Where candidates are entered for examinations by a teacher, the teacher must take responsibility that candidates are entered in accordance with the current syllabus requirements.
- Entry fees cannot be refunded.
- You will normally be given at least ten days advance notice of examination date, time and venue. The venue will be the examination centre operating nearest to your home address.
- Examinations may be held on any day of the week – including, but not exclusively, Saturdays and Sundays. Examinations may be held at any time during each two-month examination period; this may be within or outside of the school term. The exact date examinations are held in an area is entirely dependent upon the availability of candidates, the examination venue and the examiner. As with any other examination appointment, it might be necessary to take a small amount of time off work or school, or to rearrange a weekend appointment in order to attend.
- Once an examination is set up RGT will have issued a contract to pay both the examiner and the venue for the duration of each candidate's examination. Candidates who request RGT to try and reschedule their examination to another date and/or time will incur a fee to cover these costs and administration expenses. However, it should be noted that in some cases it may not be possible to reschedule the examination, particularly if no spaces are available in other examination centres. In such circumstances the candidate will forfeit their entry fee if they decide not to attend for their original appointment.
